

April 24, 1967

To the Editor
Minnesota Daily
10 Murphy Hall
University of Minnesota
Minneapolis, Minnesota

A Daily classified ad client, PSYCHO., offers for sale in your columns formulas for banana essence, "still legal," and dirty pictures, etc.

You should be informed that he is a harmless and pleasant psycho., having a disorganized and puerile handwriting and mentally defective spelling. He is probably addicted--to making puns. He should be exposed for pushing a drug called F-U-N.

For my $1.00 bill he returned a straightforward recipe for ordinary banana bread and a textbook summary of amyl acetate synthesis. In addition, he returned my bill, somewhat modified but not destroyed, by a rabbinical, bearded face taped over Washington's portrait and two busts of cows over the Great Seal of the U. S.

The Minneapolis Police Department has PSYCHO. under careful surveillance. He has, so far avoided any violation of F. D. A. regulations or laws about mail fraud. He is probably guilty of--thumbing his nose at society.

I would hope that he might eventually turn his psychopathic energies to more constructive social ends, such as founding a Society for the Defense of Phony Academic Middle-Class Values.

Sincerely,

Henry Blackburn, M. D.
Associate Professor
Laboratory of Physiological Hygiene

HB/rk