Dear Bill:

It was delightful and amusing to hear your effective presentation at Wentworth-by-the-Sea and to see and read how well you represent the prevention community generally. It was equally amusing to see how you continue the exaggerated tendency of your predecessor to ignore "the world outside Boston." We would really expect from a person of your international background, linguistic and intellectual abilities to give a much broader historical base, n'est pas? Framingham, Harvard and Boston are clearly at the top, bien sure, but surely not all alone.

Jokingly,

Henry Blackburn, M.D.
Professor and Director
