Dear Dr. Moore:

I was pleased to hear of your interest in the preventive aspects of cardiovascular diseases and your request for career advice. It is always better to be "one of the boys" with cardiological credentials, to have a greater voice. It is also healthy to have a continuing clinical-epidemiological exposure and contribution.

Also, to be credible to the "other side", in preventive medicine, the MPH is very helpful. Outstanding ideas or industry can, of course, overcome any lack of these official credentials.

We are for the first time formalizing our training program in preventive cardiology, in concert with Jay Cohn, as described in the enclosed fellowship applications. If these are successful, we would welcome consideration of your coming here in July, 1976. We would be happy to meet with you and discuss this at greater length when you wish. This could include an MPH program at Minnesota; you might want to explore Harvard and Hopkins or Pittsburgh for this, as well as our program.

Don't hesitate to call and chat, and it is quite possible we might meet on one of your or my travels in the next period.

Cordially,

Henry Blackburn, M.D.
