Dear Henry,

Thanks for your nice letter of September 5th. It was a painful wrench to decide to part from my alma mater, but the HTM certainly has some exciting possibilities.

I was really pleased to hear from you (I had already heard something of it from others) that things are going well at your corner of the world. That is splendid.

It would certainly be good if we could have a talk, concerning the book and perhaps other more lively matters, while you are in London en route for the Antipodes. It would be even better if we could have a meeting. If you and Nellie would like to make the 30 mile journey out of London to Summer Green to spend the night with us, Ceridwen and I would be delighted; but it may be that with such a prohibitively long journey ahead of you, you will not want to add to your travel time. In that case I should be most happy to come up to town for a brief or not-so-brief meeting; or we could leave it, as you suggest, at a telephone call. Our home number is 04947-3148.

Yours,

Geoffrey Rose
