Dear Lew:

As the AHA Council representative on the AHA Nutrition Committee, you might be amused by this "popular style" effort. I think the nutrition committee has moved to the right, in an academic approach to individual "hyperlipidemia", backing away from a more pragmatic approach to the national program. It appears to be slightly swinging back, but the AHA diet position has been dulled. You should also be aware of the AHA deposition on egg council ads and I enclose mine and Dick Ross'.

Regards,

Henry Blackburn, M.D.
