Dear Mr. Pace:

I think there may be a problem with the hospital staff granted parking privileges in Mayo Garage, lower level. This morning a six-pack container of Bud Light beer and a broken Skippy peanut butter jar prevented people from parking in three spaces. Frequently one finds evidence of hospital staff dumping their cigarette receptacles in the garage, and there is some evidence to suggest that some of them are staying overtime in the spots.

I don't know how many other reports you're getting on this, but if others and your attendants are reporting these sorts of abuses, it might be useful to notify people that this sort of littering and abuse of privilege, if detected, will result in permanent loss of their parking rights. What do you think?

Cordially

Dear Dr. Blackburn:

Thank you for your letter advising me of problems in the Mayo Garage. Problems with broken glass seem to be isolated incidents.

Problems with litter are a problem in all parking facilities. Attempting to enforce a no littering ordinance is more costly than cleaning it up.

In following up on your letter, I did find that our enforcement on night contracts had become too relaxed.

I appreciate your concern with the security of the garage.

Sincerely,
