Dear Len:

We're still plugging away at the Behavioral Scientist-Epidemiologist with interest in alcohol or drug abuse. We're having a strong second interview with Alex Wagenaar from Michigan but they're going all out to keep him there. We've really very good resources, a director's position and another tenure track faculty position to develop this area, plus the large support group in behavioral science. Our new cancer group under John Potter is working on markers of alcohol consumption and making real progress.

This is just to put a bug back in your ear, as we need a good scientist in this field having a public health outlook.

Best seasons greetings.

Henry Blackburn, MD
Professor and Director
